

I can use the passive voice when necessary

I can use colons correctly

I can proof-read my work for spellings and grammar

My writing makes people want to read more.

I can use brackets, dashes and commas for extra information

I can use TiPTop to start new paragraphs

I can use hyphens to avoid ambiguity

I can use semicolons in lists, and between main clauses

I can use speech conventions correctly.

I can use figurative language in my writing.

I can use a range of different sentence types to add variety.

I use pronouns to avoid repetition

I can use commas to separate clauses.

I can use a Sub/Ind/Sub clause structure with punctuation

I can add an ing or ed clause to create a complex sentence.

I can use apostrophes for possession

I use question marks when necessary

I make sure verb endings and tenses are consistent.

I can add a relative clause, and punctuate with commas

I use fronted adverbials and prepositional phrases

I can use the correct was/were their/ there/ they're

I can use and highlight 3 adverbs in a piece of writing.

I use connectives when, while, since, although, after, wherever

I can use apostrophes for contracted words

I must use CAPITAL letters and full stops 75% of the time.

I can use and highlight 3 adjectives in a piece of writing.

I only use connectives and and because once in a sentence.

I can use exclamation marks when necessary

By following the path of the Tydd St Mary Ninja, you will realise that the pen is mightier than the sword! Good luck in your quest to become a Grammar-master, and gain your black wristband!